The POWER ISSUE

"From left to right: Howard Srebnick, Fanny Hanono, Vivian Fried and Robert Zarco at Robert's home."

What you have in your hands right now is the highly anticipated and most celebrated Power Issue of South Florida Business Leader magazine. We are featuring the 29 Power Players of 2010 who are making a difference in South Florida business and community.

This issue recognizes the most powerful and influential leaders in our region. Drawing top business, legal, medical and community leaders, the Power list includes the crème de la crème of South Florida.

What is so impressive about the honorees profiled in this Power issue is that they all are leaders who are making a difference both within the business world and the South Florida greater community. They understand that the success and health of their business or professional career must go hand in hand with the quality of life in the community. These people that we honor in the pages of this magazine this month are not only making a difference today but, through their actions, they are shaping the future of South Florida.

South Florida Business Leader is honored to be able to introduce you to these important South Florida leaders.

You'll also see beautiful sites featured in this issue. A true South Florida landmark, the Biltmore Miami Hotel located in Coral Gables provided us a location as we took photos of Power honorees.

Mr. Robert Zarco also welcomed us in his home for several photo shoots. Thank you so much, Robert for being very kind and generous.

Thank you to the photographers at Studio 7 and Gort Productions for taking the time to capture the images of the Power Players for this issue.

Finally, we hope you'll enjoy the profiles of these business leaders and legends.

Enjoy!

Roy Black

Senior Partner
Black, Srebnick, Kornspan & Stumpf, P.A.

“Great achievement comes with a high price, a price most people are not willing to pay,” Roy Black shares as he recalls his first job as a trial attorney. Then being one of only ten attorneys of Dade County, the Senior Partner of Black, Srebnick, Kornspan & Stumpf, P.A. did not have the luxury of training as he started a murder trial the day after being sworn in. At present, Black over-prepares not only for trials but for everything which makes him a valuable asset of the firm. Aside from being a prime litigator, Black and his wife hopes to make a difference by establishing “The Consequences Charity” which offers services and support for troubled youth and provides them with a second chance in life. He proudly works beside his wife, who he calls a “fundraising phenomena” in order to keep kids out of jail and educate them.

Howard Srebnick

Partner

Black, Srebnick, Kornspan &amp; Stumpf, P.A.,

“Many lawyers have the will to win but only a few have the will to prepare. Had I prepared for the Ironman with the same intensity that I prepared for trial of a criminal securities fraud case, my race time surely would have been faster,” Howard Srebnick recalls after participating in the inaugural Miami Ironman 70.3. The Black, Srebnick, Kornspan & Stumpf partner shares that their firm devotes an enormous amount of time and effort in the preparation for a case. The team of lawyers, including Srebnick, and paralegals endure sleepless nights to insure that their clients have the best chance of success. Aside from legal work, Srebnick serves as a race director of the cycling group Zensah Team Lifeline. It raises money for Chai Lifeline, a charity that provides services to families with children suffering from cancer and other life threatening illnesses.
