

Roy Black

Partner – Black, Srebnick, Kornspan & Stumpf, P.A.

Roy Black, senior partner of Black, Srebnick, Kornspan & Stumpf, P.A., is one of the nation's premier trial lawyers. With over 40 years of experience as a criminal defense attorney, he also handles select civil lawsuits, offering clients a complete service in high-stakes cases. Included for the past 23 years in Best Lawyers in America[®], he has handled hundreds of cases in Florida and the U.S. After receiving the highest score on his bar exam, he continues to excel in rankings, receiving a top ranking in Chambers and Partners Legal Guide, inducted into Florida Trend's "Legal Elite Hall of Fame," and a "Top 10 Florida Super Lawyer." Mr. Black was a legal analyst for NBC's "Today Show," and often appears on other major network and cable news shows, explaining newsworthy legal cases. He authored Black's Law, a book that recounts his legal strategies to safeguard the freedom of four clients, and has taught advanced criminal evidence at UM Law School for over 30 years.
